Dear Charleston,

I hope you remember my name. I was in the Urban Tribal Dance class with you the last two months or so. (Daughter-in-law of Noemi) I wanted to write you for some time to tell you what a great teacher you were for me. You came at just the right time in my life, so I'm not sure why it is over. I'm not getting sentimental, just contemplative. I want to learn more from you before you leave. I am extremely focused on movement and releasing or better controlling, through conscious movement, my energy. I have to understand my body's movement ability more as it applies to dancing. Pilates I discovered is amazing for strengthening my muscles, and is a good foundation for the body to dance. I feel a lack of guidance. You were a great teacher for me not only because of your knowledge but also how you presented it, and how you approached it in general. You have a way of explanation that I can readily relate to, and understand, and believe! I trust you. Which is so unusual for me. Help me on my way to become a dancer. Help me earn experience from a master! I don't mean to flatter you or beg for that matter LOL, I feel your teaching is critical for me, and I hope I deserve it. If you can't help me to become a dancer, then I would also trust who you would really thoughtfully refer me to. Please write back with whatever comes to your mind. Let it be truthful!

Sincerely,

Brandy Bauer
